With summer almost over and big Apple announcements on its way, it's a great time to recustomize your iPhone or iPad to help you sell it – without spending a lot of money. Here are the 10 best free apps (in alphabetical order) for resellers: Over the years I've had the opportunity to play with at least a dozen CRM systems. Most of them are hard to use, even on the computers for which they were designed. The base is the best of the new breed of CRM, which has been implemented specifically for startup on mobile devices. When I did some writing for Base a while back, I downloaded the app and was pleasantly surprised if I could make it useful in less than a minute. For years, I've had a recurring nightmare in which I'm in a long, winding corridor desperately trying to find the right airport gate. Ever since I started using this app, though, it doesn't seem to me to have this bad dream so often. GateGuru tells me what's going on with my years so I can take care of other things, like why I'm standing in the terminal next to an elephant and I'm only wearing boxers. Uhnh, if you haven't heard of this, where the hell were you hiding? Seriously, just enjoy it. You're going to use it. It'll make you happy. It's the Holy Grail of free apps. One of the biggest few business trips is tracking spending and then writing a report. This is especially true for sellers because their cost reports are usually examined with a finer-toothed comb than other workers. Expensify takes care of this irritating chore for you. Travel is, of course, a huge part of your cost of selling. Obviously, you don't want to pay more for your hotel rooms than you have to. When I'm at the computer, I use Orbitz and for this purpose, but I found their mobile application to be a little clunky. This easy to use application focuses like a laser on the best hotel deals you'll probably find on this airbnb side.This book-reading gem might seem like a stretch as a sales app, and it's only free for a week, but I end up using more than any app on my iPhone or iPad because it gives me unlimited access to thousands of top-of-the-line books about business, sales and marketing. (My own publishers don't support this app yet, so you can't get any of my books this way, unfortunately.) If you're serious about documents, you might want to think about Microsoft Word for iOS ($99 a year). And if fantasy presentations are your thing, go to Apple's Keynote ($9.99). Table... shrugged. But if you're all about free apps, it's hard to go wrong with the basic quickoffice version. I used it for about two years with few or no complaints. This application is so simple that it's almost silly. Until recently, I was still using my FranklinCovey skin day planner to track what I needed to do because the mobile to-do apps that were available felt artificial and caught. I don't know exactly how to explain it, but this app feels like it belongs on a mobile device. Absurdly easy to use. Maybe it's just me, but it's often hard for me to sleep the night before an important meeting. I use this app to calm down after a hectic day, and while I just need to be well-rested for grief, yes, it's not Ambien, but it's damn close. Back in the old days flip-phone, I used to print out all the various emails from airlines, hotels, rental cars, and so on, and laboriously convert them into a neat little form in my dayminder. Many times this single collection of travel information got me on schedule. As useful as this activity was, I don't have it anymore because this app does it for me. I think I'm lazy. Note: Because I don't use Android, there are no links to versions of these programs running on this platform. However, most of these freebees are also available there. You are reading Entrepreneur India, an international franchise of Entrepreneur Media. Mobile apps are a getaway to everything for everyone these days. So, people stuff their phones with as many apps as they can until they realize they have a memory problem. This is the behavior of ordinary people, there is a certain proportion of people with a particular choice and they are entrepreneurs. This is a set of people who are very careful what type of applications they have on their mobile devices. Apps are very useful and time-saving, but on the contrary, with the wrong apps on your device, they can be a huge distraction and consume time that can be used well. That's why entrepreneurs are very picky about their applications. App minimalism is a technique preferred by entrepreneurs. They may be downloading many applications, but they will instantly filter those that are not useful and clear it from their phones. They manage their mobile device very accurately so they have easy access to useful apps. Here's a list of app categories that every entrepreneur should have on their mobile device. 1) Productivity Apps It doesn't matter how busy you are, how productive you are is what matters. Entrepreneurs are very focused on this thing. Entrepreneurs need to juggle a lot with time and app productivity can help them do that. These applications are tools to save time and its proper use. Not only entrepreneurs, even employees use these apps to track your work and how much time it took to finish Work. To increase productivity, it is a prerequisite for measuring it. Productivity apps help you measure and improve, allowing you to complete more tasks in less time. 2) Team Collaboration Apps Entrepreneur needs to keep the entire team on board. It is a little difficult to meet with each individual, lead meetings, assign tasks, establish independently. This is where teamwork applications come into the picture. Team collaboration apps make it easier and easier for entrepreneurs to manage projects, and everything can be managed from a remote location. Some popular examples of these applications are Trello, Slack and Dropbox.Every entrepreneur must use any of the above applications. They let you connect with people, communicate with them, create a group, and have group chat, make video calls, and make video calls, and even share files. The entrepreneur must perform all these tasks and teamwork applications to make this possible.3) Security applicationsIf there is an entrepreneur who is too popular and successful, they are the hot target of cyberattacks. That's why security apps are of the utmost importance to them. Although there is no such threat, it is recommended to improve cybersecurity with some security applications. There is sensitive data, whether it is contacts or business information or personal data, which can be very dangerous in the wrong hands. 4) Content Bookmarking AppsEntrepreneurs are not always free to read when something interesting pop up on their mobile devices. That's why they keep content bookmarking apps on their phones. These applications will allow users to bookmark content for now to read later how and when it is needed. The best examples of such applications are Pocket and Instapaper.Most successful entrepreneurs would have one of the content bookmarking apps on their devices, and if you don't get better get one. Reading is one of the most common habits and sometimes the most unfortunate of times. But don't worry, they can be saved and read at the most appropriate time.5) Note: Taking one of the best things about note-taking apps is that you can store notes on one device and access it from any other device. Entrepreneurs tend to travel a lot and come across a few things to remember later. Photo apps can be the best way to notice things and never forget them. It is right to say that the best ideas come at the most unfortunate times. With note-taking apps, you never miss an idea that can be turned into a lucrative business. 6) Knowledge AppsLearning new things and growth is a continuous process. Knowledge is what keeps entrepreneurs on top and constantly hold the desire for it. So they have knowledge applications on their phones to use in their spare time and expand their knowledge. Knowledge applications keep entrepreneurs up to date facts, recent trends and the latest news. Entrepreneurs need deal with different people from different industries, conduct meetings, presentations, and consider that they must fill themselves with knowledge. These apps are the best at it. If you're on the verge of becoming an entrepreneur, it's probably a lot of apps that you should have already. Follow the steps for babies by installing and using the right set of apps. Also start developing the right set of apps if entrepreneurs are your choice of audience. Audience.
